

Description and Outline of Veterans' Health class:

Title: Combatting Information Fatigue: Health Information Resources for Veterans and their Families

General Description: Veterans and their families need reliable health information resources and training to locate health information that is sensitive and pertinent to their needs. This course will cover resources for finding information on general health conditions, mental health resources including those for post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), family issues, substance abuse, amputations, support groups and more. Additionally, this class will prepare participants to find and assess other veterans' health resources.

Target Audience: The target audience is veterans and their families, veterans' community-based organizations and librarians who serve veterans' and their family's health information needs. Prerequisites: familiarity with the Internet. The class is intended to introduce and demonstrate relevant information resources for veterans' health.

Educational Objectives:

Participants will be able to:
