Description of Award

The mission of the Network of the National Library of Medicine (NNLM) is to advance the progress of medicine and improve the public's health by providing U.S. researchers, health professionals, public health workforce, educators, and the public with equal access to biomedical and health information resources and data. NNLM's main goals are to work through libraries and other members to support a highly trained workforce for biomedical and health information resources and data, improve health literacy, and increase health equity through information. The NNLM Regional Medical Libraries (RMLs), Offices, and Centers rely upon partnerships with Network members to achieve these goals by providing training and funding for local outreach programs. The award's primary aims are to broaden access to and awareness of health information resources, with an emphasis on those resources provided by the NLM, and increase communication channels between librarians, health care professionals, government, and community- and faith-based organizations. The programs are intended to help a variety of users, with a focus on minority and other underrepresented populations and the health professionals who serve them, make the most effective use of information and decision-support resources that hold the promise of promoting healthy behaviors, preventing costly and debilitating illness, and improving health outcomes when disease occurs.

Background/Purpose

The purpose of the Health Information Outreach Award is to provide support for projects that improve health information literacy and increase the ability of patients, family members, students and members of the public to find and use health information; or improve health professionals' access to, awareness of, and skills for locating high-quality biomedical and health information. Awards should focus on building partnerships, collaborating with local community groups, and other key groups to reach underserved populations in the region with health information outreach projects.

Proposal Requirements and Preferences

All projects must incorporate one or more National Library of Medicine resources like PubMed, ClinicalTrials.gov, or MedlinePlus. You can refer to the NLM Products and Services for a complete overview of resources by topic.

Preference will be given to projects that reach underserved, minority and underrepresented communities including but not limited to:

- Racial and ethnic minority populations
- Sexual and gender minority populations
- Populations reported below the Federal Poverty Level
- Populations with limited access to medical care
- Populations with physical and/or mental disabilities
- Soldiers, Veterans, and Military Families
- Rural Populations

Potential Project Ideas

Potential projects may include but are not limited to (this list is not meant to be all-inclusive):

- Training unaffiliated, minority, urban or rural health professionals in effective use of electronic health information resources for evidence-based practice with an emphasis on NLM databases and NNLM resources.
- Exhibiting or presenting at local meetings or organizational events to share completed outreach projects and promote NLM products and services.
- Evaluating health information and training needs of a target audience and implementing a training plan for that audience.
- Programs on locating and evaluating consumer health information found on the Internet.
- Incorporating NLM health and science information resources into new or existing health programs. See National Health Observances slide show for some ideas.
- Development of supplemental educational materials using NLM resources for educators/teachers.
- Train-the-Trainer projects that enhance the skills of library/organization staff and other consumer health information intermediaries to train a target population on locating and evaluating health information.

RML/Office staff are available for consultation and training on applicable NLM resources.

Eligibility

- Must be a Network Member of the NNLM. Not a member yet? Join now for free!
- If you have questions, please reach out to nnlm-region7@umassmed.edu.

- Organizations, in most cases, are only eligible to apply for awards from the Regional Medical Library that serves the state in which they operate in. Please contact the RML for further clarification.

Please clearly document if this project will engage traditionally underrepresented populations and/or involve medically underserved areas. When possible, support the stated need using data such as known needs assessments or statistics.
- Project goals and objectives: State the goal(s) and specific objectives(s) of the proposed project. Goals should align to the NNLM Goals and Objectives. Please review the National Evaluation Center \(NEC\) resources for information on how to create evaluation plans and objectives.

The purpose of the PAS-SUB is to evaluate subaward-funded activities in a rigorous and standard manner. Areas of evaluation include satisfaction, impact of participation in the activity, awareness of organizations, and trust. Funded projects have the option of adding up to four SMART objectives to the evaluation. Evaluation data will be reported back to the funded organization. The PAS-SUB is an electronic survey to collect data on activities supported by the award. Awardees are required to coordinate with their Region 7 Coordinator to set this up prior to the activity taking place. For proposals not using the PAS-SUB evaluation, describe how the project will be evaluated. Include data collection frequency, type of data to be collected, tools, and how data will be used or disseminated, and justification for not using the PAS-SUB instrument.
